1 Abstract

1.1 Reason why this was made

There's a massive body of literature describing the effect of electoral law on Political systems, but it's not been backed with any substantial research regarding the perception of said systems. The aim of this paper is to study said perception, and what systems best seem to fit the actual desire of the people subject to this paper's survey.

1.2 Methodology

The survey was sent to over 2000 people, and recieved 161 answers. The data from these answers has been used to interpret a study form Overseas Development Institute (ODI) [ODI-electoral-systems]

1.3 Results

From the data gathered, we reached the conclusion that the most suitable electoral law is a straight proportional system
