Profile

I am an open minded and eclectic person. Curiosity is my drive, which leads me to investigate, dive deep, discover, and learn. I thrive on the new, the complex, and in the making of connections across different subjects. I find great pleasure in completing complex tasks, and tend to seek them with excitement. As I have a strong interest in politics, I find the behaviour of people to be a really interesting subject: how they interact with the systems they live within, how the culture they grew up in affects their world view, and where the foundations of their belief systems base themselves in.
